The Cadet Corner

It's a new exciting year for the Bronco Battalion, and Cadet Corporal Erin McGarrey is looking forward to helping the incoming freshman Cadets.

“I'm excited to see the upperclassmen and the younger Cadets working together to build a strong organization,” Erin said. There's a lot in store for Cadets this year. Utilizing the key to success, teamwork, will allow for many accomplishments in this new year.

Higher Expectations

The 2018 – 2019 Bronco Battalion Commander, Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Solomon Davis expects everyone to “represent the name of JROTC with pride and excellence, as well as being involved with something in the school”. Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Davis is also excited for competing in the Richmond, Virginia National Championships again. The key to his motivation this year is to find something he's passionate about and work for it.

A Summer Glance

During this past summer, select JROTC Cadets competed in a challenging but fun Junior Leadership Challenge at Mount Lebanon in Cedar Hill, Texas. Multiple Cadet were recognized as the “Most Outstanding”, “Most Inspirational”, “Best Leader”, and “Best Team Player” while at camp.

Cadets participated in many activities. These activities include Human Foosball, Ziplining down a 40-foot tower, Basic Map Reading, Land Navigation, and Archery.

Cadet Major Nadia Channell participated in JCLC this year and feels that her experience here taught her “teamwork and communication which can help in the new year”.

Special Teams

This year the Bronco Battalion has 9 Special Teams. These teams include Raider, the Physical Training Team, Unarmed Drill, Armed Drill, Color Guard, and CyberPatriot.

Last year, the Special Teams took home 43 trophies from competing in various drill meets and competitions. They plan to continue their winning streak in this new year.

There's been 2 teams added this year, Orienteering and a Ranger Hike team. They plan to also compete in their own competitions and bring home more awards for the Bronco collection. All Cadets are welcomed to join these teams if they're willing to work for the prize.
